All
FYI the APCC will be including information on our Teesside University research project in their APCC submission to the HASC Enquiry. I have also submitted a Cleveland submission covering more details of the project and other work ongoing around scrutiny of stop and search and COVID powers.
Kind regards

Thanks [REDACTED] – sounds like a really worthwhile project. Please do send me a link to the report when its published in August.

Will include the following para in the final draft of our HASC submission that I will send to our EDHR Leads for sign-off:

Cleveland OPCC has commissioned Teesside University to undertake an independent research project, exploring community perceptions regarding the local force's implementation of the Coronavirus Regulations, and how communities would like the force and the OPCC to engage with them during the period of social distancing. The research team are using a range of data sources, including enforcement data covering gender, ethnicity, and Local Authority area. The final report is expected in August 2020.

I'm on leave tomorrow and Monday so please let me know if any issues by 2pm today.

Best, [REDACTED]

Richard

Cleveland OPCC will be putting in a submission to the above HASC Enquiry in relation to work ongoing in Cleveland. One element of this is quite unique so I was hoping it could be included in the general APCC Response? We have commissioned the local university to undertake a piece of research into public perceptions around how the police have enforced COVID legislation locally. Full details are below. If you require any further information please let me know.

Kind regards

Teesside University Project

Cleveland OPCC have commissioned Teesside University to undertake a research project, on behalf of, but independent to, the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner for Cleveland.

The Covid-19 pandemic has led to the implementation of new legislation, the Coronavirus Act 2020, which gives police officers the powers to enforce government social distancing restrictions which have been put in place due to directions from Public Health to limit the spread of Covid-19.

During this period it is important that the Police continue to police by consent and deal with local communities sensitively at a period when many will be feeling particularly isolated and vulnerable.

The research has two key requirements:

- To understand community perceptions regarding Cleveland Police implementation of the Coronavirus Act powers - The University will be an independent player acting to advise the OPCC on public perceptions regarding Cleveland Police use of covid powers to ascertain whether the community, and in particular 'at risk' groups, feel that the new powers are being used appropriately with the desired focus on engagement, education and encouragement before resorting to enforcement. This will include engagement to understand how communities would like the Police and OPCC to educate them regarding the new powers.
- To understand how the community would like Cleveland Police and the OPCC to engage with them during the period of social distancing when traditional face to face engagement mechanisms are not appropriate – This will potentially include recommendations regarding future engagement mechanisms to better reflect the diverse range of platforms available for engagement, and will potentially have longer term implications for the format of community engagement, going beyond the timescales of the pandemic. Research will be undertaken to look at best practice regarding community engagement in other Force areas, including a review of the benefits of a range of social media platforms.

The research team are utilising a range of data sources and methodologies to gather information. These include:

- Community mailbox email address where community members can send their thoughts on policing during COVID
- Online questionnaire based on .gov.uk and Scottish Police Authority questions to allow academic comparison between the Cleveland experience of policing the pandemic and that experienced across the UK
- Telephone interviews with community members
- Complaints data relating to COVID-19 enforcement
- Data on COVID-19 enforcement in Cleveland, covering gender, ethnicity and Local Authority area
- Analysis of high enforcement and low enforcement areas to allow comparison

The project has been promoted through a range of mechanisms including:

- Cleveland Police Community Engagement Team
- OPCC key community contacts
- OPCC social media channels and website
- Teesside University social media channels and website
- Rural Watch
- Cleveland Connected community messaging system
- Local Resilience Forum COVID-19 community messages

The final report is expected in August 2020.

Summary

Attached is your end of week bundle including a draft APCC evidence submission for the HASC review of the Macpherson Report as well as a readout from the most recent evidence session; the proposed S22a Agreement for the FCN; an extension to the consultation on the draft APCC business plan; a letter from [REDACTED] to NATMSN Project Aidant; a reminder of free regional virtual workshops about the complaints review process and a 'save the date' for the PCC Roundtable on Road Safety and Roads Policing.

Dear Police and Crime Commissioner,

Home Affairs Select Committee inquiry: The Macpherson Report: twenty-one years on

As part of its inquiry into The Macpherson Report: twenty years on, HASC is accepting new evidence on policing and race including on concerns raised about the policing of the Covid-19 lockdown and reported disproportionality in fines and investigations of individuals from BME communities.

Attached is the draft APCC evidence submission for PCCs to view. If you have any thoughts, please contact [REDACTED]

If PCCs wish to reflect local concerns/own views they are encouraged to submit their own evidence.

The first evidence session for this inquiry was held this week. A short readout is also attached, summarising the views expressed by the witnesses, for information. We hope you find this useful, if so please sign up to our weekly Parliamentary Business and Legislation Tracker which will include more readouts like this. To be added to the distribution list please contact [REDACTED]

Forensics Capability Network – S22a Agreement

Attached is a copy of the proposed S22a Agreement for PCCs and Chiefs to sign in relation to the Forensics Capability Network and a joint covering letter from the APCC and NPCC leads for forensics, setting out the rationale for this agreement. You will recall that the forensics network originally began with funding from the Police Transformation Fund, but now that this has closed work has been going on for the last few months to set this up as a national collaborated unit.

The form of the agreement has been agreed with APACE, who have been working for the last year on a Template 22a Agreement to use in future collaborations, which properly reflects the governance role of PCCs, amongst other things. You will shortly be hearing more about the template, but in the meantime, many of the provisions in the forensics agreement follow this format.

There will be an opportunity to discuss the Forensics Network with the APCC Lead at the AGM in July and you will see that the date for receiving signed agreements back has been set at 31 August 2020. In the meantime, any queries on the agreement can be sent either to the Forensics Network

Consultation on draft APCC Business Plan 2020-22

Thanks to all of you who have already responded with your comments on the draft APCC Business Plan 2020-22 (GR 86/2020).

In response to a number of requests, we are extending the deadline for responses to CoP next Wednesday (24 June). We want this to be a document that all PCCs can own and get behind, setting out our ambitions and priorities for the next 2 years, and welcome any feedback or comments from Commissioners, DPCCs and their teams.

Please send comments to [REDACTED] and / or let us know if you would like to give feedback via a call or Teams.

Modern Slavery - PCC [REDACTED] letter to NATMSN Project Aidant

Attached is the letter from [REDACTED] as well as the two additional letters which are referenced in the letter:

Workshops on Complaints Reviews

[REDACTED] has asked us to pass on the following message:

As Portfolio Lead for Integrity and Transparency, I am aware that IOPC are running a number of free regional virtual workshops for OPCCs during July about the complaints review process for Local Policing Bodies and learning from the first 6 months. You should all have been informed about these – but if not, please contact [REDACTED] who can provide details.

In addition, I know that some OPCCs are using Sancus to conduct the initial stage of reviews and that Sancus are also offering workshops on the same topic a bit later in the year, but a fee is attached to this. IOPC is keen to clarify that the Sancus workshops are not linked to the IOPC workshops in any way or commissioned by them, as there has been some confusion about this.

If you have any queries please contact [REDACTED]

Save The Date – PCC Roundtable on Road Safety and Roads Policing – Thursday 23rd July

With the publication of the HMICFRS review of Roads Policing expected shortly and the joint Home Office and Department for Transport review of Roads Policing to reconvene, [REDACTED] APCC Lead for Road Safety is hosting a roundtable discussion with PCCs and their offices to discuss these important developments and other emerging roads policing/ road safety matters. The roundtable will take place on Thursday 23rd July from 3.00pm to 4.30pm via Microsoft Teams.

Please hold this date in your diaries, an agenda and formal invitation will follow shortly. Contact:
