AIM

You may recall the AIM approach when you were the Chair of the Safer Middlesbrough Partnership.....I've attached a Middlesbrough Council Scrutiny Report which looked at AIM in 2005!

- I would be very interested on Richard's view on this, particularly in regard to the direction of and implications on operational policing, and the interface with Pacesetter and the Tasking & Co-ordination Process.
- Have the Force been consulted and/or involved in the development of the model?
- How does it fit with the development of the neighbourhood policing model and placed-based working?
- The proposal includes an AIM group – what is the role of this group, is this an operational tasking group that is going to direct resources???
- Linkages with other existing partnership structures need to be considered – ie Local Criminal Justice Partnership re Court issues etc...

DHR

With the exception of the understanding HBV, the lessons learned are not unique to Middlesbrough with other DHR's across Cleveland also identifying these issues. This could provide the opportunity to revisit discussions for a Tees-wide joint working approach to domestic abuse and delivery against the below DHR recommendations – particularly with CCG colleagues who operate on tees-wide footprint.

- Review the effectiveness and if necessary strengthen the information provided to family, friends, work colleagues and diverse communities about recognising the signs of domestic abuse and where they can go, if necessary anonymously, with such information. In particular there should be a focus on smaller businesses that do not have the infrastructure in place to support victims of abuse.
- Health agencies and commissioners within the partnership need to ensure that professionals are trained in recognising abuse, being alert to indicators and understanding the links between mental health and domestic abuse. Professionals should have clear understandings of pathways and when appropriate use routine enquiry to ask and understand if a patient is a victim of domestic abuse.
- Policies and training in relation to domestic abuse recognise the barriers that victims of domestic abuse may face and that measures are in place to help victims overcome their fears about making a disclosure of domestic abuse. Where gaps are identified agencies should provide assurance that plans are in place to deal with them.
- Agencies ensure policies and training in place to recognise and respond to 'so called' honour based violence. Where gaps are identified agencies should provide assurance that plans are in place to deal with them.

Kind regards

Fyi and any comments, I'll raise the 'hippie crack' issue as a multi agency solution under AOB.

Would welcome comments asap re DHR.

Will discuss AIM with Richad, incl implications for police resources.
